Final Rites For Crash Victims

Rev. Frederick B. Noss, minister of South Congregational church officiated Tuesday at 2 p.m. at funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. Chester D. Abbott, 123 Red Spring Rd., who were killed in an automobile accident last Friday in Enfield, N. H. Following the services in the church, burial was in South Church cemetery.

Abbott, 82, and his wife, the former Grace Brown, 83, were pronounced dead on arrival at Mary Hitchcock Memorial Hospital, Hanover, N. H. following the accident which involved three cars.

According to police, Abbott's car was struck from behind on Rte. 4 in Enfield by an automobile operated by Ralph R. Davis, 28, of Lebanon, N. H. The rear-end crash caused Abbott to lose control of his car and it crashed (Continued on Page Seven)

When Selectman Robert A. Watters inquired at Monday night's meeting about the possible purchase of water from the City of Lawrence, Town Manager Richard Bowen said that "is not available."

The town manager said that he had talked with the city's water supervisor and was told that in the event of a dire emergency, Lawrence would provide Andover with water.

The discussion came during a motion asking the finance committee to provide $5,000 or any other reasonable amount to institute a survey of possible new ground water sources.

This search for new sources would be in addition to the Fish Brook project which comes before the voters at Monday's special town meeting.

While Lawrence has an ample supply of water, the pumping and distribution of the water to Andover would set up a problem. The city already supplies water to Methuen as well as to the city. To take on an additional burden (Continued on Page Four)

Special Meeting Monday At 8 P.M.

The hour of decision will come for Andover voters Monday night when the Aug. 16 special town meeting is called to order at 8 p.m. at Memorial Auditorium.

The most important of the six articles in the warrant will ask the appropriation of one million dollars to improve the town's water supply which now has restricted use.

The action will come under Article Six of the warrant and upon its passage will depend the beginning of construction of the Fish Brook project, a plan to add a million gallons of water a day to the level of Haggetts pond.

The project consists of a dam across the brook near the outflow in the Merrimack river, an impounding reservoir, a pumping station and a transmission line to carry the water to Haggetts pond.

The project has won the approval of the finance committee, the selectmen and the board of health. The board of health in a statement issued Wednesday over the signatures of Robert A. Walsh, chairman; Fay Elliott, secretary and Dr. John Wholey said:

"Our town as well as a great portion of the eastern part of the United States, is suffering from a water shortage. Restrictions on our water supply have caused some inconvenience that we are apt to forget in the fall and winter months (Continued on Page Two)

Selectmen Hold Stormy Session

At a stormy session Monday night, high-lighted by an executive meeting requested by the town manager during which loud shouting could be heard in the halls, the selectmen went over the warrant for the Aug. 16 special town meeting.

The fireworks began after the board voted support of Articles one and two; agreed to pass an expression of opinion on Article 3; voted 4-1 to approve Article 4 for the purchase of the Shorten property; passed over Article 5, and gave support to Article Six.

Selectman Roger W. Collins then proposed a motion premised on the purchase of the Shorten property. He wanted the board to go on record as announcing that the site had been selected as the location for a new town building and police station.

Collins said that it was time to tell the voters what the board was planning to do. He went on to say that there will be a need for a new fire station in a couple of years which may cost as much as $250,000.

Selectman Robert A. Watters turned to Collins and began to ask him about his previous stand on sites for the new town building.

"You had been hot on other sites, why have you changed your mind?" Watters asked.

Collins replied that he has come to the conclusion that the other sites were too expensive. Watters, who favors the Shaw property site was told that the taking away of (Continued on Page 13)

Andover Joins Poverty War

In last-minute action, the town manager was given permission by the board of selectmen Monday night to join with Lawrence and other area communities in the War On Poverty program.

Manager Bowen explained that Aug. 15 is the deadline for applications for Neighborhood Youth Program workers who would begin employment in September. He said that Andover must join Lawrence as the town does not have a Community Action Council and is too small to operate with the federal government alone.

He said that he would have to prepare his applications and have them in the Lawrence office by 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Manager Bowen said that he could think of a couple of dozen "stations" in office and conservation work where help would be useful. Those eligible under the program are high school dropouts, potential dropouts and unemployed persons under 21 years.

Selectman William Stewart insisted on knowing who would run the Andover program if it came under Lawrence. The manager assured him that there would be no conflict between the Greater Lawrence communities and each would have its own program.

During the discussion, Selectman Robert Watters said: "I think the government is stingy in paying only $1.25 an hour under the program."

when grass cutting, gardening and swimming pools are put aside until the following spring. This water shortage, however, is not merely an acute situation that will disappear with a wet autumn, heavy winter snowfall and wet spring. This shortage is one that will become more acute and indeed, could become so deficient that it will fail to meet the health needs of our community.

"We do not suggest that the Fish Brook Project is the whole answer to the necessary supplementation of our water supply, but it is a step in the right direction and with an adequate rain and snowfall this initial step could supply us with adequate but not abundant amounts of water.

"It is incumbent on all citizens that we meet our responsibility on this project at once. Aug. 16 is the dead line. This is not an issue of a new building on a project that can be delayed, it would be a sad reflection on your responsibility if we fail to pass the article at the special Town Meeting. It would be a disgrace if we fail to obtain a quorum at our meeting on Aug. 16.

"Your Board of Health hopes that you will attend the meeting, ask questions and vote affirmatively on Article 6 - The Fish Brook Project on Aug. 16."

If the voters of Andover approve the Fish Brook project Monday night, construction will be in progress by Oct. 1 and the work will be completed in the spring in time to benefit from the spring thaw and the annual runoff of water.

Among the other articles in the warrant is one calling for an appropriation of $40,000 for the purchase of the Shorten property on Park St. opposite the fire station. This proposal also has the backing of town officials.

Many residents are planning to return to Andover from vacation resorts on Monday to attend the special town meeting so important are the issues.

PURCHASE OF LAWRENCE WATER A SUGGESTION

such as Andover would necessitate the installation of much larger pumps.

The town manager said that there is no emergency yet despite restrictions placed on the use of water.

"Another million gallons a day from Lawrence would not remove the restrictions," the manager told the board. He explained that the long dry summer has caused a great deal of evaporation of water from Haggert's Pond which goes down a foot a month.

In conclusion, he said that he would again look into the possible purchase of Lawrence water.

Selectmen Want Answers From School Board

The 3-2 vote of the school committee against joining other departments with offices in the proposed new town building came up for discussion at Monday's selectmen's meeting.

The question hinged around the lack of a legal opinion as to who has the authority in placing the school department's offices - the selectmen or the school board. Town Manager Bowen said that he estimates the school department would require about 2,000 square feet of floor space in the new town building. He said that this could mean an additional outlay of some $75,000.

Supt. of Schools Edward L. Erickson was reported to favor the use of the Jackson school as administrative headquarters for the school department. He feels that it would be well under $50,000 to remodel the building and provide up to 7,000 feet of floor space.

Town manager Bowen said that some of the advantages of having all town departments in one building would be a single heating plant, common custodial force, a typing pool for all departments, etc.

"There appear to be many advantages," Selectman William Stewart remarked.

Through a motion made by Selectman Paul Cronin, the manager was directed to communicate with the school committee, ask the reason for the 3-2 "no" vote on coming into the new town building, and providing cost estimates of the alternatives to joining the other town departments.

Meanwhile, the town manager said that he would "prod" the town counsel to provide a legal opinion on the matter.

Computer Award To Andover Student

A five-week computer course for 136 high school students at Northeastern University was completed last week.

The tuition-free course, conducted by Northeastern in cooperation with the Junior Engineering Technical Society (JETS), emphasized the application of computer programming to the science and engineering fields.

At graduation exercises last week, three students received awards for having prepared the best computer programs. They were: Bernard A. Amoro of Medford, first place; David C. Eklund of Lowell, second; and Mary Ann DeBolt of Andover, third.

Professor Wilfred P. Rule of Northeastern's graphic science department, coordinator of the computer course, presented the awards. Professor Franklin K. Brown (of Northeastern) presented the certificates to all graduates of the course.

The course, which was designed to provide high school students with an early exposure to the expanding field of computer programming, demonstrated the methods and techniques of programming a typical digital computer.

The students were taught a computer language called FORTRAN which is used to solve simple scientific and engineering oriented problems. They had direct daily contact with an IBM1620 computer in the University's Computation Center.

During the five-week course, the students went on several field trips including a visit to Honeywell in Wellesley, where they learned about "new generation" computers, random access equipment and remote stations.

They also heard guest lecturers from various fields of engineering and science who spoke about the use of computers in their fields.

Insect Pest Invasion Expected

An end-of-summer invasion of certain insect pests can be expected, according to the Waltham Field Station extension of the University of Massachusetts. These include horn worms, euonymus scale and fleas. In fighting these pests, the Bay State's experts on insect and plant disease control warn that chemical pesticides should be used with extreme caution.

Usually in August, owners of tomato gardens will see horn worms on their plants, recognizable by their green color and thumb length. These insects eat the leaves and strip the tomato plants down to their stems. If only a few plants are infested, pick the horn worms off each day by hand. If three dozen or more plants are infested, spray with DDD or TDE wettable powders, according to the manufacturer's directions.

Euonymus scale will be hatching early in the month and appearing on euonymus, pachysandra and

Attend Town Meeting

Those who have seen their lawns burn and brown and have missed the unlimited use of water during the heat of mid-summer had well better remember the special town meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium.

The most important article in the warrant is the sixth which deals with the appropriation of a million dollars to get the Fish Brook water project underway.

The prolonged drought and the increasing demand for more water in Andover has brought about a critical condition. The Fish Brook project, scheduled for 1966 has been brought forward because of the extreme condition.

The situation will become more critical as autumn arrives and the woodlands and meadows become tinder dry. The forest fire danger, ever high in Massachusetts may become a nightmare for firefighters and property owners.

Town Manager Bowen said at the selectmen's meeting Monday night that there is no emergency at present. The restrictions on water use were ordered to escape an emergency by preventing the level of Haggetts pond from falling even more rapidly than it has since the first of the year.

If the voters at Monday's town meeting give their stamp of approval to the Fish Brook project as have the finance committee, the selectmen and the board of health, the way will be paved to alleviate the water shortage here.

Construction plans for the Fish Brook project are already prepared. Approval Monday could mean that bids would be received shortly after Labor Day with work to start about Oct. 1. The project would be complete in the spring of 1966 to accept the annual water runoff.

The plan is basically a simple one. Fish Brook would be dammed near its confluence with the Merrimack river. There would be an impounding reservoir where the water would accumulate. A pump would then force the water through a transmission line back into Haggetts pond where it would be stored and would maintain the level of the pond.

Financing of the Fish Brook project would be by long term bonds. In addition, there may be federal or state funds available which the town can accept. It is understood that legislation already passed by the present Congress will provide for payment of half the cost by the government.

The Fish Brook project is the first of several which will have to be taken over the years to insure an ample supply of water for the ever-growing community. A survey will soon get underway to seek new sources of ground water. Eventually, the town may have to take advantage of the plentiful Merrimack river supply on which a number of communities now rely.

There are other articles in Monday's warrant, most of them dealing with real estate transfers, including purchase of the Shorten land and building. But the most important is the Fish Brook project for an increased water supply.

The least the townspeople can do is to attend Monday night's special meeting, hear the pros and cons and cast a vote on this all-important matter.

Upping Rte. 93 Speed Limit

The Massachusetts Department of Public Works began an experiment on a section of Route 93 this week. It has to do with upping the speed limit from 60 to 65 miles per hour.

The department terms the undertaking a two-week test to determine if the higher speed is practical on Route 93 and possibly on other freeways in the Commonwealth.

Anyone who has driven on Route 93 or on the open sections of Route 495 in this area is well aware that the posted speed limit of 60 miles an hour is more frequently violated than observed.

Posting the road for the higher speed will only be making legal what is now common practice on the interstate highways.

What Our Readers Say—

To the Editor of the Townsman: It would seem that most of Andover's residents realize the seriousness of the water shortage and are adhering to the restrictions laid down. However the per capita use of water is more than 100 gallons per day which is much too much. If the water used in a typical day were put in gallon jugs the containers would stretch from here to New York City!

The writer has experienced more severe shortages in other places and has just come back from New York where warning signs are to be found in store windows and hotel bathrooms. He suggests that water can be saved in the following ways:

1. Don't run the tap to get cold water for drinking. Keep ice water in the refrigerator.
2. Cut down on time spent in the shower. Lower the usual tub level by one inch.
3. Don't flush toilets at every provocation.
4. When shaving run small amount of water into plugged sink. Don't run water straight down drain.
5. Use automatic washers only with full loads.

He said the small call on this state probably can be attributed to the fact that the age of inductees in other states is not as low as in Massachusetts and heavier calls now are being placed on those states who have the older men available.

"We hope Massachusetts induction call will continue to be small in October. However," Carr stated, "if it does, the age of inductees throughout the country should be equalized and Massachusetts could expect an increase in the size of their November induction call."

Higher Speed Tested On Rte. 93 Area Here

A stretch of Route 93 in Andover became part of trial by the Massachusetts Department of Public Works Monday to determine the feasibility of increasing the speed limit on freeways from 60 to 65 miles an hour.

The DPW has replaced the 60 MPH signs with the 65 MPH directional signs from Roosevelt Cir. in Medford to a point just south of the bridge spanning the Merrimack river between Andover and Methuen.

DPW Commissioner Francis W. Sargent labelled this as "a two-week experiment" to permit the Department's safety engineers to observe the new regulation at work. If the experiment is found to be a success, then it will be made permanent on I-93, and studies will begin on other freeways.

"Other freeways" would include portions of the Interstate system with completed sections long enough to permit sustained travel at the higher speeds such as I-495, parts of I-95 south of Sharon, and I-195 from Somerset to the Rhode Island line.

Also to be studied for posting at higher speeds would be Route 128 from Lynnfield to Braintree; Route 3 north of 128 to Tyngsboro and south of Boston to the Cape Cod Canal; Route 24 from 128 to Fall River; Route 6 on Cape Cod from the Canal to the Barnstable Rotary; and parts of Route 2 where it is a divided highway with full control of access. Sargent said that the experiment on I-93 follows eight separate studies along the route to determine the feasibility of the higher speeds, all involving standard safety criteria.

"Despite the fact that Massachusetts has the third lowest fatal-accident records in the country, it is not a simple matter to raise a speed limit by as little as five miles an hour," Sargent explained. "Before we are willing to raise limits on any highway, we must satisfy ourselves that the higher speed will not lead to a higher accident rate, or more serious types of accidents."

Among the studies made are those that involve the driving habits of those now using the particular highway - the manner in which they observe all the rules, including the present speed regulation.

There is a careful study of sight distances - the distance a driver can see ahead, around a bend or over the crest of a hill. Studies are made at all grade separations - at intersections, overpasses or underpasses, and at interchanges to assure that no unusual problems with structures, abutments, or merging traffic offer danger points.

Checks are made to observe the manner in which a highway is banked on a turn, lest a higher speed tend to make centrifugal force a hazard to easy steering control.

To be sure, modern freeways, are engineered for safety, but the final proof is in the driving. So, for the past weeks DPW engineers have been driving on I-93, maintaining the top posted speed - and when occasion permitted, trying out the 65-mile speed as well.

Now they are satisfied that the higher speed is feasible. Their recommendations have been sent through channels to the Board of Commissioners, who have voted to permit the two-week experimental period.

On Monday, August 9, maintenance crews from Districts 4 and 5 of the DPW will change the speed signs from 60 to 65. As Commissioner Sargent said, if the experiment is successful, the higher speeds will be permitted on other freeways throughout the state.

Friends of Miss Rebecca Kydd of Lincoln St., will be sorry to learn that she is a patient at the Cole Sanatorium.

Loam Removal Hearing Held

Following a public hearing Monday night on the petition of Henry W. Croteau to remove stock piles of loam from property at 456 Lowell St., the selectmen took the matter under advisement.

It was brought out that the loam was stockpiled when a large barn and farm pond were established. There was no place to replace the loam.

A side issue arose when a resident of the area wanted to know if a brook running through the property had been dammed to create the farm pond.

In taking the matter under advisement, the board agreed to request the water supervisor to look the brook over to see if there has been any violation of the law.

The stockpiles of loam contain from 1,500 to 2,000 yards, the board was told by Croteau who said it would probably take a year to dispose of all of the loam.

ANYONE FOR TENNIS was out of the question Tuesday evening when heavy rain accompanying a thunder storm flooded these tennis courts and cancelled out a scheduled tournament. (Cole)

Help Needed To Harvest Apple Crop

Some $750 thousand dollars in wages will be ripe for picking in September by workers who want to help harvest the Massachusetts apple crop, according to J. William Belanger, Director of the Division of Employment Security.

The state director announced that his agency will wage an intensive drive to recruit some 2100 men and women to work during September harvesting this important crop in Massachusetts orchards.

Belanger said that two developments triggered the urgent need for this year's crash recruitment program. "During past years", he stated "this state's apple growers employed a number of Canadians to help harvest the apple crop." The Canadians would live in quarters provided by the employers and remain here until the apple harvest was over, when they would return to their homes in Canada. Belanger said that this year the Secretary of Labor has issued regulations, implementing changes in the immigration laws, which prohibit importing foreign labor for farm work unless it has been clearly established that workers are not available locally or from other areas of the United States.

The other factor influencing the need for a special drive for workers, according to Belanger, is the expected above average apple crop this year. The New England Crop Reporting Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture forecasts a production of 3,000,000 bushels of apples by Massachusetts orchards this year, a seven percent rise over last year's yield.

Belanger said that the pay rate is established at 25 cents per bushel of apples with a guarantee by the employer of at least $1.30 per hour. Apple growers say that the average worker last year picked enough apples to earn approximately $2 an hour. Experienced workers earned $20 or more per day.

The state director said that his agency has been asked to supply some 2100 of the estimated 3900 workers needed for the harvest throughout the entire state. The greatest concentration of orchards is in the Nashoba Valley area which is located in Worcester and Middlesex Counties.

Most of the workers will be employed picking the apples. Others, in much smaller numbers, will be used loading the boxes of apples on trucks and hauling them from the field to the storehouse, and others in grading, packing, and shipping the fruit.

Persons living within commuting distance of the farms will be able to travel back and forth between their homes and the orchards daily by means of their own or employer-provided transportation. Others from more distant areas of the state will live in lodgings on or near the orchards, which are provided free by the employer.

The apple harvest generally lasts from four to five weeks beginning in September.

Men or women interested in earning extra cash helping to harvest the apple crop should sign up at the nearest State Employment Office of the Division of Employment Security. Applicants for these jobs will be notified when the harvesting begins. Although the greatest need is for full-time workers, arrangements may be made for part-time or week-end workers, he added.

Special farm labor recruitment teams of the Massachusetts State Employment Service will be visiting every area in the state during the next month looking for apple harvest workers.

Heavy Rain Cools Area

A thunderstorm, accompanied by heavy rain caused postponement of the tennis tournament on the play-stead Tuesday evening as the courts were flooded.

During the rain, the contractor preparing the site for the new senior high school took the occasion to burn a pile of brush which had been gathered during the past two weeks. After dark, the glow from the Shawsheen Rd. fire could be seen from many parts of the town.

Building Committee In Session

At a meeting of the senior high school building committee Tuesday night, George McClellan, architect, was asked to study the proposals for heating systems made by the Massachusetts Electric Co. and the Oil Institute. The meeting was made by Town Manager Richard J. Bowen who said he has been unable to come to a decision on oil or electric because of the inability of the consultants to "agree on basic conditions and provide objective analysis of their respective systems."

The committee voted to approve passage of article three in the warrant for the special town meeting for the acquisition of 7.5 acres of land adjacent to the site of the new high school from Dr. Peter C. Paicos.

The motion made by Committeeman Frederick Higgins stated that although the land is not needed it would be desirable if it can be obtained at a reasonable price.

The board of selectmen Monday night approved the article at a price of $2,500, the assessed valuation of the property.

Textile Museum Acquires Library

Merrimack Valley Textile Museum has acquired the library of Boston's famous Essex Company which founded Lawrence, according to an announcement from the Museum this week.

Rex Dennis Parady, Merrimack Valley Textile Museum librarian said more than 1,100 volumes are in the library, which had been housed in the Company's Lawrence office.

"The Essex Company library admirably supplements our own," Parady said. "We are especially pleased to acquire substantial runs of several engineering periodicals, the Journal of the Franklin Institute, and copies of Massachusetts laws for the nineteenth century."

The library was donated to the Merrimack Valley Textile Museum through the efforts of James E. Bagley Jr., treasurer, Duncan S. MacKillop, cashier, and Russell Knight of Marblehead, president of the Everett Mills and a director of the Essex Company.

The Merrimack Valley Textile Museum is a center for the study of the role of textile manufacturing in American history. In addition to the research library, the Museum houses an exhibit which displays the techniques of wool manufacturing before and after the Industrial Revolution.

SELECTMEN DISAGREE ON TOWN HALL SITE

that area would cost a great deal of parking space and also would preclude the possible sale of the land for commercial use.

Watters chided Collins for his indecision about the various sites and pointed out that he (Watters) had been consistent from the start in support of the Shaw property site.

Selectman Paul W. Cronin then entered the debate with a strong personal attack on Watters for the manner in which he was questioning Collins.

"This is a new low," said Cronin. "If he wants to be so sanctimonious and come charging out on his white charger, I'll meet him toe to toe."

Chairman Philip K. Allen ruled Cronin out of order. Selectman

William Stewart backed the chairman and condemned the attack. Chairman Allen then allowed Cronin to go on with his questioning of Watters as to the value of the Shaw property. Watters replied that the value of any property is only known when someone wants to buy it.

Selectman Stewart said that he had voted in favor of the purchase of the Shorten property but only for control. He said he did not want to see a town building there as it would be across the street from the back of the fire station. Stewart said that he would take the floor at town meeting to oppose the site as suitable for a town office building.

Town Manager Bowen pointed out that acquisition and use are two different things. He said that the voters would have to give approval for demolition of the buildings on the property before it could be put to use.

"You are mixing two things," the town manager said to Stewart. "I'm not mixing anything," the selectman shot back.

Expressing confusion over the whole matter, the town manager requested an executive session for a private discussion.

Before the door was closed, Selectman Cronin issued an apology to Watters and asked that it be put on the record. Watters accepted the apology and the board went into its private huddle. This was shortly before 11 p.m. and they didn't leave the building until just before midnight.

Article Six Wins Support Of Commission

The Andover Development and Industrial Commission has thrown its support to Article 6 of the special town meeting warrant to be acted on Monday evening. The article calls for the appropriation of a million dollars to create additional water facilities in the town. In a prepared press release, the commission made the following announcement:

"Chairman Charles DeBell of the Andover Development and Industrial Commission, announces that the Commission voted unanimously in favor of Article 6 of the Special Town Meeting Warrant, which appropriates $1,000,000 for a water pumping station, dam, and reservoir at the mouth of Fish Brook.

"The Commission voted this way, because they realize that Andover does not even have enough water for the present population and present industries, much less additional industry and people. Since the Commission is actively promoting additional desirable industries to locate in Andover, the Town must develop an adequate water supply to have any chance of attracting industry."

COOL WATER which resulted from Tuesday's heavy storm provided an attractive wading pool for these local youngsters and their dog. (Cole)

Routine Matters Before Selectmen

The selectmen Monday evening signed a Dog Warrant which allows the dog officer to enforce the license law or to pick up unlicensed dogs.

Town Manager Bowen said it has been estimated there are between 200-400 unlicensed dogs in Andover. With the execution of the warrant Monday night, the power was immediately invested in the dog officer.

A communication was received from legal counsel for James J. Devine whose daughter, Donna, was reported to have been bitten by a German shepherd dog on Argilla Rd. on Aug. 4. The dog is now under a 14 day quarantine. The board voted to turn the matter over to the chief of police for an investigation and a report at the next meeting. They also voted to order the dog restrained until a decision has been reached.

In acting on five applications for excavation permits filed by the Lawrence Gas Co. and the Mass. Electric Co., Selectman William Stewart expressed displeasure at streets being dug up just after they have been resurfaced.

Town Manager Bowen produced a new set of resurfacing requirements when streets in the town are opened. He said that under the new rules, streets will have to be returned to the shape they were in previously. Selectman Paul Cronin suggested that the selectmen provide the utility companies with a list of streets to be resurfaced each year. If any installations were to be made, they would be made before the road work begins. The companies would then have to wait a year before again having an opportunity of opening a street.

A letter was received from the City of Haverhill requesting the board's assistance in obtaining an Atomic Energy Commission project for that city. Haverhill officials stressed the value to the entire Merrimack Valley. Selectman William Stewart noted that Andover was interested in such a project, too. However, on motion of Selectman Cronin the town manager was directed to write the desired letters to the area's congressional delegation.

In connection with the issuance of a charter of incorporation to the Massachusetts School Bus Association, Inc., the Selectmen gave character approval to Frank Trombly of Andover, one of the incorporators.

The manager was given permission to set up a Council for the Aging in Andover for the benefit of senior citizens. He said that on July 4, the president signed legislation which will bring $100,000 into Massachusetts.
